

What We've Heard So Far...

Community Stakeholder Workshops

The first step of the engagement process for Lucas was a stakeholder workshop, which took place on Wednesday, January 29. Attendees included representatives of neighbourhood associations identified by the City of North Vancouver and in close proximity to Lucas. The workshop format offered the opportunity to share community perspectives from neighbourhood representatives in a focused, small-group environment. The same general questions are being asked to the broader community today.

Photos from the Cloverley Community Stakeholder Workshop, January 30. The Lucas Centre Site Community Stakeholder Workshop followed the same format as the Cloverley Workshop.

Outcomes from the Lucas Workshop

Participants broke out into smaller groups for a facilitated discussion based on the following two questions:

1. What are some of the important issues that should be considered for the future of the Lucas site? What, if any, are your concerns?
2. What are some of the greatest opportunities that could be considered for the future of the Lucas site, considering what we know about it being both a lever and a place for learning?

Based on the notes taken during the small group discussions, the following key themes emerged:

Lucas Workshop - Top Emergent Themes

Important Issues

- Concern about potential future traffic
- Concern about the authenticity of the engagement process
- Concern about loss of space and meeting future educational and recreational needs of the neighbourhood
- Desire to maintain public access

Greatest Opportunities

- Uses that generate a low volume of traffic
- Elder / senior housing
- Sports and other recreational uses
- Other public uses

A full transcription of the notes from each workshop can be found on the project website and on information tables at the Open House.