

Growing up as a gender variant youth in North Vancouver: A conversation with Seth Watt about the importance of active allies

A graduate of Carson Graham Secondary, Seth Watt is now a PhD student at UBC specializing in the biology of sex differences in nature. He has published research on the effects of cross-sex hormone treatment in transgender men as well as on quality of life in the transgender community. He volunteers as a mentor and co-facilitator at various LGBTQ+ youth programs, including QMUNITY's drop-in program and CampOUT summer camp. Most recently, Seth founded a medical support group for trans and gender diverse people, hosted by QMUNITY.
