Outcomes - 2019 Catchment Reviews

From March to May 2019, the North Vancouver School District undertook two catchment reviews to determine the feasibility of changing catchment areas to balance enrolment between schools. After receiving community feedback and analyzing suggestions and concerns, both proposed catchment changes will be implemented for the 2020-21 school year. ## School visits

Capilano Elementary School

At Capilano Elementary, I took part in a dry ice experiment with Mme. Todd's grade 4 class. I was also able to see hands-on science and simple machine projects in Mrs. Pringle/Ms. Stroh's class. Students were also busy outside doing woodworking projects. I also popped into Ms. Pena's class and into the library with Mrs. Farrell.

Handsworth Secondary School

At Handsworth Secondary, I first checked-out the library. Then I watched short French mystery plays written and performed by students, visited with the inclusive education team, watched dance class, and visited PE class. I also popped into physics 12 and graphic design 11/12.

Cleveland Elementary School

I learned about Anne Frank with Catherine Crepeau and Devon McHugh's students. I then explored the world of vertical math with Leanne O'Neill and UBC student teacher Gabby Lefroy.

Canyon Heights Elementary

At Canyon Heights I was impressed by the science fair, hosted by teachers Gillian Fraine and Judith Lowe.

Queen Mary collaboration time

I was happy to spend time with staff as they engaged in professional learning during collaboration time.

Cheakamus River Feast

I was pleased to join colleagues, Board of Education members and the community in support of Cheakamus Centre at River Feast. Proceeds of the long table dinner go towards the educational programs offered at Cheakamus Centre.
