Spring Break Edition

We made it!

As the weather improves and restrictions are slowly being lifted, we can sense the optimism and positivity coming back to public life. The last year has been a tough one and we have all been tested. At Cleveland we have seen such kindness and grace from parents and children through all of this. Thank you. We will get through this together and the effort is worth making. Students should be in school where possible interacting with their peers and learning in classrooms. It is good for them. But they are certainly worn out and tired. So have a great spring break full of long walks and getting in touch with the outdoors. We will all return recharged and ready for the whirlwind that is April-May-June. We have a lot of outdoor learning activities planned for that time so stay tuned (remember – April is Earth Month!)

To the Moon

We could not go to break without sharing the rocket launches that Division E05 did on the field with a big audience. The excitement was palpable and grew during the countdowns. The firing of the rockets the students built was fantastically thrilling. Science and Engineering (with some art and design thrown in) for the win!

Have a GREAT break.
