

Announcements for Oct. 29th, 2019

Attention all Grade 11 and 12 students: Please see Mrs. Marshall or Ms. Weyell ASAP if you intend on writing the numeracy exam

This is just a friendly reminder for all members of Math Club of your meeting this Wednesday at lunch in Ms. Dai's room. All students interested in participating in the University of Waterloo Math Contests are also welcome.

Hey Carson! Want to learn about the new technologies that are capturing carbon dioxide from the atmosphere and enabling the production of ultra-low carbon fuels? Then come to the upcoming session of Lunch with a Scientist this Friday, November 1 at lunch in the library. This week's presenter is Anna Stukas from Carbon Engineering and she will discuss the numerous efforts that are being taken for carbon capturing. Drop-ins are allowed but to ensure yourself a free slice of pizza, you will need to fill the online Google Form. See Mr. Blay in Room A201 to learn more about the registration process!

Grade 10s! Have you started your Personal Project? Well you should have! Your criteria and to-do list were due last week. You should have a minimum of three journal entries on ManageBac by this Wednesday. See Ms. d'Aoust, Ms. Mile, or Mr. Kwan if you need help with your project.

Boo!!!! Today is the first day of activity for the Spooky Spirit Week. Come by the agora at lunch for a Halloween themed bake sale and cookie decoration put on by the Student Advocacy Space. All proceeds go towards promoting and supporting your clubs and initiatives within the school. Also check out the Halloween themed band concert tonight in the agora at 7pm! And finally, the annual Carson Graham Haunted House tradition will be put on by the senior drama department and will surely be worth checking out.

Spooky Halloween Edition of Coffeehouse is this Thursday at lunch in the dance room! Coffeehouse is a Carson Talent show for all students and staff to enjoy during lunch! Again that's Coffeehouse, this Thursday, in the dance room!

WINGS club is hosting our very own pumpkin carving contest. Come down to the Agora at lunch on Oct. 30 to watch your favourite teachers and students carve the best pumpkin.
