September 30th is Orange Shirt Day in Canada. This is a day when Canadians wear Orange to recognize and acknowledge those who attended residential school in Canada.

Orange Shirt Day was started by Phyllis Webstad in 2013. Phyllis is a residential school survivor who chose orange because this was the colour of the shirt that was taken from her on her first day at residential school. Phyllis started Orange Shirt Day to acknowledge and honour those who attended Indian Residential School and to share this history with all Canadians.

Find out more by checking out the displays in the library and near the conference room.

Homework club will be running today after school in the Library.

Lost and found is filling up. Please check items.
